A Talk On Your Duty As a Voter

If you owned an interest in a husiness and wanted to hire a man for a term of years to run it you would set about in a methodical manner to select the proper man. First of all, you would select a man who, by training and previous experience, was qualified. Then you would investigate the man's standing in the communities where he had lived, what successes or failures he had encountered in the kandling of the farmer business concras with which he was connected, whether he was trathful, honest, had ever been guilty of betraying a trust, in fact, you would make a detailed investigation and satisfy yourself that the man was the one you were looking for to take charge of your business, or not, as the case might be.

As a voter you have in interest in the business of the state, and you should use the same common sense methods in voting as you would being to bear if you were selecting a mun to take charge of your private business. You should satisfy yourself that the man for whom you vote is honest, truthful, stands well in his community, has never been guilty of anything that a strictly honest man would not do; and while, of course, it is impossible to elect expereneed men to fill public offices, the same as you would do in your private leasiness, you can set up the other requirements for the man you east your ballot for.

It is your duty as a citizen to vote only for men who have shoven by their past acts that they will not betray the trust that is placed into their hands. Men are elected to public office for two years in the state and six years in the United States senate, and if you find after they assume charge that they are unsatisfactory you have no redress. It is impossible to docharge them and get others in their places. They must be retained until their terms expire. Therefore you should use care in making your selections in the first place

The men on the Democratic fielder, in the county, state and for congress, will conduct the business of the respective offices to which they are elected in the proper manner. They were selected on merit alone and no boss had a hand to making the choice. If you want fromest men elected to office, men who will not disappoint you when it comes to discharging their duties satisfactorily, vote the democratic ticket next Tuesday.
